Friendly police on patrol

by Mai Martinez

Chanticleer News editor

This semester, some unlikely students will be getting citations from the police-the Friendly Police, that is. Don't try to hide behind an innocent smile or a friendly hello because that's exactly what they're looking for.

Joe Whitmore, director of institutional analysis, and the SGA are assembling a "Friendly Police Force" which will be issuing citations to those students "caught" in the act of being friendly. The citations will be in the form of a small card which reads "CONGRATULATIONS -You have just been cited by the 'Friendly Police.' By smiling and being courteous today, you are doing your part to keep JSU 'The Friendliest Campus in the South.'" Anyone who receives a citation can redeem it for a free medium drink at The Roost.

The idea is an effort to put some meaning back into the "Friendliest Campus in the South" slogan of JSU. Whitmore says many people feel JSU has moved away from that in the past few years.

According to SGA president, Bob Boyle, the police force will consist of "people who are visible. People that go to the caf and eat sometimes, or that are walking back and forth between this building(TMB) and Bibb Graves or across campus." The officers will be members of the administration, student body, and even actual police officers.

Boyle and Whitmore hope the idea of having such a police force will encourage people on campus to be friendlier to each other. "Just somebody being nice to another person can

Traffic flow at Merrill changed again

by Mai Martinez

Chanticleer News editor

This semester, students taking classes in Merrill Hall have a little more to deal with than the usual finance equations and economic exams. As what seems to be an added bonus to all the other changes this semester, the University has again, rerouted traffic in the Merrill Building parking lot.

Acting deputy director of public safety, Sgt. Rick Tubbs, said the changes were made in response to a request by Dr. Fielding who teaches in Merrill Hall. Fielding said he has seen at least four or five accidents in the parking lot. "We've just been lucky. I was afraid someone was going to be killed."

This semester's rerouting of traffic marks the third attempt by the University to end the confusion and congestion which is a common occurrence in the Merrill parking lot.

The first attempt was to have one-way traffic flow in each row of parking spaces, alternating the direction

Minority Affairs office hosts Multicultural Week

Five-day celebration spotlights sights, sounds, tastes of different cultures

by Rachel Riddell

Chanticleer News writer

Multicultural Week is a celebration of our diverse surroundings. Activities started on Monday September 9th and will continue through Friday September 13. Acting Director for this week's activities is David Zeigler. Zeigler, also the Head of the Office of Minority affairs began preparing for this week back in June.

"The United States is not the melting pot that most people think it is. Instead, it is a salad bowl with everyone tossed around together," Zeigler states. He feels it is important for people in the community to be open to their surroundings and other ideas. This is why so much time was placed into this week's events.

Monday's activities included a seminar at the Theron Montgomery Building's Auditorium. The purpose of the seminar was to recognize prejudice, stereotyping, and how people are effected by them. The movie "Babe" was shown as the multicultural movie to show how stereotypes and prejudices can prevail.

Although Monday's turnout for the seminar was small, Zeigler is optimistic that the rest of the week's activities will have a booming attendance.

This week's activities also included Career Day on Tuesday. A panel of professionals including Dr. Jose' Caballero, attorney Marcus E. Reid of Anniston, and Dr. Chi Chin Chao, professor of mathematics at JSU spoke of cultural diversity in their careers. Displays were set up and literature was available on medical school, law school, and graduate school was available along with information on military, dental, and pharmacy professions. Wednesday's Health Day at the Roundhouse was hoped to be a very educational day for many people but especially nursing students. According to Zeigler "many nurses need to have knowledge of what kind of illnesses and diseases

Clinton promises tax credit for college tuition

by College Press Service

CHICAGO- In accepting the Democratic nomination for the second time, President Clinton proposed tax breaks targeted to education that he said "would build a bridge to the 21st century."

"By the year 2000, the single most critical thing we can do is to give every single American who wants it the chance to go to college," Clinton said Aug. 29 before a packed-to-the rafters crowd at Chicago's United Center.

Clinton said he would enact a grab bag of tax cuts targeted at making college more affordable for working families.

This included a proposal for a $1,500-a-year tuition tax credit for the first two years of college, called HOPE scholarships, and a $10,000 tax deduction for college tuition.

"We must make two years of college just as universal in four years as a high school education is today," said Clinton, adding that the $1,500-a-year tuition tax credit would cover the costs of the typical community college education.

Also on his wish list: a $2,6000 grant for unemployed and under-employed workers for training and expansion of AmeriCorps, the national service program, to create a new literacy corps to teach youngsters to read.

"I want to say here, before I go further, that these tax cuts and every other one I mention tonight are fully paid for in my balanced budget plan, line by line, dime by dime," Clinton added.

For college students, tax relief lies ahead if either presidential candidate can deliver on their campaign promises. Under the Dole plan, lower- and middle-income taxpayers would be allowed to deduct interest on student loans, and parents would be able to set up tax-sheltered accounts to help save for their children's college education. Both candidates propose allowing penalty-free or tax-free withdrawals from Individual Retirement Accounts to pay college expenses.

A number of college students heading out of the convention center after the president's acceptance speech said they were pleased by Clinton's education proposals.

"I think it's great. As many people should go to college as possible," said Marty Morris, 20, a University of Chicago junior. "I hope he really follows through with that campaign promise."

Aimee Kandrac, 18, said she feels fortunate that her parents are able to pay her tuition at Lake Forest College.

Clinton's proposals would give others "a chance to go to college," she said. "I was really happy, and I think no one else is going to do it."

Others expressed more concern.

"He has noble goals," said Preston Elliott, a 19-year-old freshman at Lake Forest College. "But let's just see how he wants to get it done."

between rows.

The second, which was still in place at the end of last semester, allowed traffic to flow in both directions in all three rows. This eased the congestion, but for some, increased the confusion.

The present routing of traffic calls for one-way traffic flow toward Stone Center in the first two rows of spaces and one-way traffic flow in the opposite direction in the third row, which leads to highway 21.

In previous years, drivers could turn left or right at the opening of the parking lot to highway 21, but this semester the exit is limited to right turns only. "It's very dangerous for people to turn left," said Fielding.

Part of the danger was the large number of drivers on the highway who were turning right to enter the parking lot., at the same time students exiting the parking lot were turning left. The University hopes restricting the exits to right turns only will eliminate this problem.

Some students trying to head toward the main part of the campus find this frustrating, but they manage by using the side roads on the opposite side of the highway.

Another change the University is working on is a plan to have the state install a traffic light further north on highway 21. Fielding said this would be to slow down the traffic heading south on the highway before it reaches the crosswalk in front of Brewer Hall. "It's dangerous. We almost lost a young lady there last semester."

Fielding said the state is suppose to send a team to survey the traffic in the area around highway 21, Merrill Hall, and 11th street, which intersects the highway just past the Merrill parking lot.

Friday wraps up the week with a Fun Day on the Quad. Lectures on higher education will be held on the 11th floor of the library. Activities on the Quad will include a volleyball and spades tournaments and a badminton tournament will be located in Stephenson Gym. A step show in the TMB Auditorium will finish off the events with a $1 fee for students and a $3 fee for others.

help out. If people are nice to one another, and if faculty and administrators are nice to students, a student's bound to like the campus more," said Boyle.

Boyle hopes a friendlier atmosphere will motivate students to get involved with student activities. He points out that this semester, students seem to be off to a good start with a large turnout at the Thursday night pep rally and the football game on Saturday.

Although there are many friendly students at these events, don't count on the "Friendly Police," to be issuing citations. Their purpose is to cite those people around campus who are being friendly to others on regular days.

SGA returns to action, approves appointments of committee heads, justices, others

Thomas Webb and Ben Cunningham

News Writer and Editor in Chief

The SGA approved the appointments of 10 committee heads, 9 associate justices, one senator, and four other officers at its first meeting of the academic year Monday.

Approved as Director of Publicity was SGA President Bob Boyle's pick for the job, Allen Reynolds. Reynolds was Boyle's opponent for the presidency the March elections.

Josh Bearden, president of last year's Freshman Forum, was appointed as the president's executive assistant. Christian LeBlanc was selected as the president pro-tem for the senate, and Leanne Jordan was appointed as parliamentarian.

Chairpersons of SGA committees appointed include: Allison Logsdon, Organizations Council; Jarrod Nichols, Campus Safety Committee; Michael Jackson, Elections Committee; Daniel Dean, Environmental Committee; Rodney Cole, Academic Improvement Committee; Chad Lee, Wellness Committee; Suzy Crandon, Blood Drive Committee; Brenna Beard, Allocations Committee; Julie Pratt Spirit Committee; Leanne Jordan, Homecoming Committee; Josh Bearden, Constitution/Code of Laws Committee, and Marlene Alvarez-Medina, Residence Life Committee. Doug Woodward was appointed to a vacant senate seat.

Percentie, Dale Walls, and Jimmy Whited.

Appointments for all offices were unanimous.

The senate also unanimously approved a resolution declaring Sept 9 through 12 as Multicultural week and urging students "to celebrate in the diversity of our college community".

Several deadlines and events were mentioned during the meeting. The first Traffic Appeals meeting will be Monday, September 16 at 5:30 p.m. in the Student Activities Office; and on October 9 at 6:00 p.m. there will be an SGA interest meeting in the Roundhouse.

Homecoming Pageant applications are due Monday, September 16 at noon, and Freshman Forum applications are due by 4:30 on September 20. Both applications are available in the SGA offices on the 4th floor of TMB.

Salls Hall vandalism: Why no charges filed?

... It's like vandalizing your residence hall before the start of the season and not getting caught. It's like doing a world of damage and someone else pays for the repairs. Isn't it ironic, don't you think?

We Suggest:
Go public with some answers.

Some may wonder why we keep harping on the vandalism of Salls Hall, but consider for just a moment that this wasn't the home of JSU's football team at the time, that instead, it was another residence hall, or better yet, your residence hall. If this were the case, do you think three months would have passed with no charges being filed, or for that matter, no significant developments?

You would think that in a residence hall which could house up to 94 students, that there would be at least one witness, or someone who could shed some light on the situation. But, other than a few of the former residents being "interviewed"- not questioned- by the University Police Department, no one seems willing or able to talk about the incident.

At the present time, you can count on one hand the number of people who have cooperated with us to bring you the story of the Salls Hall vandalism and still have four fingers left over. This is especially sad because at a time when our university is so hard hit by budget cuts, one would think that all parties involved would jump at the opportunity to inform the rest of the student body of this crime in hopes of finding additional information, but apparently, this is not so.

Is it possible that certain people hope the whole incident will just go away? Is it possible that these same people don't want students asking questions? Or is it perhaps because the NCAA may have a few rules governing the behavior of its athletes? Surely this type of behavior would be deemed unacceptable, but obviously, the beginning of a new football season is not the best time to test these rules.

As journalists, this type of story intrigues us. The more we ask about it, the more it seems like something is being covered up, which of course, makes us want to dig deeper.

As students, this story should interest you because someone had to pay to repair all the damage done. Who do you think it was? We'll give you one guess. You're college students, it shouldn't be hard to figure that one out.

Of course, we haven't found anyone who would say exactly how much damage was done or exactly who had to pay for it, but think about it. The last time we checked, there wasn't any extra money floating around this campus to make the unnecessary repairs to the fairly new building.

Business as usual in the TMB: Lonley SGA

Benjamin Cunningham
Editor in chief

I was part of a crowd last Thursday. Monday night I was all alone.

The turnout was good for last week's pep rally. It was evident that JSU spirit was in the air. The stands at Paul Snow Stadium were filled with cheering fans, letting their opinions about their Gamecocks be known.

It was quite a different scene on Monday night at the first SGA meeting of the year. Empty seats watched in mute silence as the senators and executive committee ran through their first set of bills and resolutions. The "ayes" rang off the walls of the TMB auditorium, the echoes a testament to just how empty the place was.

In other words it was business as usual.

Last spring, it looked like things might turn out differ-ently. The number of students running for office was up, as was the voter turnout. It looked as if a new era of involvement might be dawning at JSU.

Last night, however, the familiar old apathy was back. Students apparently just weren't interested in anything the SGA might do or say.

At the University of Alabama, things are quite different. That school had been without any form of student government for a number of years until last year when a constitutional convention gave birth to a new SGA. "Controversy" is the key word at Alabama these days, as different groups struggle for control in the upcoming elections. According to what I've been reading in UA's student newspaper it's the greek "Machine" versus a group called Joining Students Together in Cooperative Effort (JUSTICE). The Crimson White describes the Machine as "a select coalition of all-white fraternities and sororities designed to influence campus politics." JUSTICE is apparently a party claiming to speak for "independent" students, those with no greek affiliation. In every issue of the paper that I see, there's a new headline or letter to the editor with different sides slinging accusations or calling for votes.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not looking for controversy or conflict. Just some interest would be nice. The SGA does lots of things on campus, or at least it has the potential. From academic regulations to major campus entertainment, the SGA has control over a wide range of activity. What it needs is manpower and knowledge of what the students want. Why not show up at the next SGA meeting and provide one or both of those things? At the very least, you come to keep the senators and campus media company.

President, who coordinated this year's event.

“We had more novelties, and of course we had the bands out there playing, and I think we even had more organizations respond that wanted to get involved,” said Narvaez. “But of course,” he continued, “every year, no matter who's in office you're always trying to outdo the year before.”

The SGA sent out invitations to participate in the festivities to every campus organization they could think of. Participants included Greek organizations, the Baptist Campus Ministries, the SGA, Peer Counselors, Miss JSU Allison Marques, 92-J, the ROTC, the Freshman Forum, and several political organizations supporting candidates running for local office.

“We pretty much had it all,” Narvaez said. “We had religious groups, we had Greek organizations, we had social clubs, political organizations, media, we had it pretty much covered.”

In addition to learning about campus groups, there were plenty of fun and games going on, including the giant inflatable slide and the human foosball court. Students could also have a good time playing Bungee Run or having it out in the gladiator jousting ring where opponents, donning enough protective gear to survive the apocalypse, tried to knock each other off a pedestal with a padded baton. In Bungee Run people attached to bungee cords tried to see how far they could run before the cords snatched them back against the wall.

“We do those things to get people to come on the quad,” Narvaez explained. “If we just had a bunch of tables out there with a bunch of organizations and nothing more it could get a little boring, but if you have something to liven things up then it's much better, which is why we had some bands out there.”

Four bands performed during Get on Board Day, but most students only saw three of them. Three well-known local bands, Idols on Parade, Ethan and the Ewox, and Heddi Brew, were all crowd pleasers. Quenchable Quid, the fourth band scheduled, was unable to play until later that evening because of some technical difficulties. Narvaez was obviously satisfied with the support the bands gave.

“They were really awesome...[they] made the day what it was,” he said.

Narvaez was also pleased with the fact that even during the brief rain the bands and some of the organizations stuck it out.

“A lot of the organizations packed up and left, but some were real troopers and we appreciate them,” said Narvaez.

Narvaez said he was happy with the outcome of the event. “I was very pleased. It's a good event ... it helps to get freshmen involved ... So hopefully it's something we can continue.

Members of JSU's ROTC program did their best to recruit new members and interest students during Get On Board Day.

Meat Beat Manifesto:

The Chanticleer Interview

by Bill King

Chanticleer Features editor

Meat Beat Manifesto has remained a staple in the electronic music world since their first release in 1987. With the release of their fifth and double disc set Subliminal Sandwich and a new record deal at Nothing Records, home of Nine Inch Nails and Marilyn Manson, the band has launched its first tour in three years. Chanticleer photographer, Janna Waller and I caught up with the band in Atlanta Sept 9 at the Masquerade where they were playing with Loop Guru and D.J. Alex Patterson of the Orb. They were nice enough to let us interrogate them for about 45 minutes and the following interview is the outcome.

Bill King: Has your new at home Nothing Records been suitable to your needs?

Jack Dangers: Well you know, early days, it's been a couple of months, but so far its been great.

B.K.: Do you think your fan base will grow now that you're on Nothing?

J.D.: I really don't know. I don't know what sort of image the label has got, if its more of an industrial one. We're not as industrial as some of the other bands on there, I don't know if that will get people.

B.K.: I know you played the big September 5th Nothing party in New York with some of the other bands, how did that go?

J.D.: You know, it was interesting, it was so hectic because it was a small venue. It was so hectic that not a lot of the bands got to talk to each other. There was one dressing room and four bands.

Mike Powell: It was chaos, it was complete and utter chaos.

J.D.: We didn't get a sound check. We were sound checking when the audience was in there. They let the audience in and we just sat there "one two, one two, check, one... two." [make snoring sound]

B.K.: I know that you're friends with Trent Reznor of Nine Inch Nails and that you have toured together. You also did some remixes for him as well, did your growing friendship prompt him to sign you to his label?

J.D.: Yeah. I met him in '89. They supported us at a show in Washington D.C. at the 9:30 Club. And six months later we were back supporting them at this place. This was the first gig of the tour. From then on we just kept in touch, and I did the mixes, and, you know.

B.K.: Where does the tour bus take you next?

J.D.: Orlando.

Janna Waller: Are you going to see Mickey?

M.P.: Not Intentionally.

J.D.: We see Mickey all the time. He's usually driving the bus, at two in the morning anyway.

B.K.: Did you find it hard getting back to touring after a three year break?

J.D.: No, not at all. This tour is more enjoyable than any other tour I've ever been on. The people we're working with now. And what we're doing musically live is more fulfilling.

B.K.: How has your live show changed since the last time?

J.D.: Well uh, John's playing guitars, prepared guitars and unprepared guitars and the saxophone. Mike's playing keyboards and the Theremin. Lynn Farmer is playing drums. And I'm up there mixing the stuff, and doing vocals, so that's obviously a change. And the Music is different.

B.K.: The way the music is progressing, do you think it will be even more different the next time?

J.D.: Uh huh. Yeah we're going in the studio in January to do the next record.

B.K.: What made you decide to release a double cd this time?

J.D.: I just thought why not, you know? If people only like ten tracks they can stop it at number ten. There was 28 tracks and we were only contracted to give the label ten tracks. So theres 18 on there that I didn't get paid for.

B.K.: Do you have any remixes lined up that you're doing for other bands?

J.D.: No we've just been touring on and off for the last three months.

We've got a single coming out called "Asbestos Lead Asbestos" and that has different remixes.

B.K.: The rest of you are fairly new to the band, how do you like it so far?

John Wilson: Best job in the world.

M.P.: Meat Beat was both our favorite band. So it was like winning the lottery or something. You grew up and you're now in your favorite band, you know? Its pretty cool.

B.K.: How did you meet?

J.W.: I was with another band called Supeme Love Gods...

J.D.: I met him here. At this venue in the dressing room.

J.W.: I was late, I missed my plane.

Jack thought I was a big gangster.

M.P.: Yeah I guess we met about four years ago. Mutual friends thought maybe we should meet. We Started swapping records, hanging out. We're still hanging out and swapping records.

J.D.: Swapping records... hanging out.

West Georgia axes Gamecocks in season opener

by Shannon Fagan
Chanticleer Sports writer

After defeating the West Georgia Braves in their first 16 meetings, the Gamecock football team and the 13,023 fans at Paul Snow Memorial Stadium Saturday evening did not anticipate the 17th meeting would be any different.

Instead six JSU turnovers, numerous penalties and a nearly invisible second half offensive attack led to a decisive 30-10 West Georgia victory.

“We didn't take West Georgia lightly. They had an excellent game plan,” said Gamecock Head Coach Bill Burgess.

The game started on a positive note for the Gamecock offense. Halfback Amel Jackson's 26 yard burst led a 13 play, 53 yard drive resulting in a 44 yard field goal by Shane Steamons.

The Gamecocks maintained a 3-0 advantage until early in the second quarter when Braves quarterback Toby Strange took to the air and found tailback for a 42 yard completion. On the next play, fullback Kevin Carroll broke into the end zone from one yard out. The Braves extra point was good and they took a 7-3 lead. After a JSU drive stalled, the Braves extended their lead on a 36 yard field goal by kicker Jeremy Coates.

The Gamecocks answered the Braves by putting together a seven play, 79 yard drive in which quarterback Montressa Kirby found wide receiver Joey Hamilton for a 34 yard

Soccer team faces “another difficult year”

by Rebecca Matanic
Chanticleer Sports editor

Entering their second season in existence, the Lady Gamecock soccer team and head coach Lisa Howe hope to improve on their inaugural 4-12-1 record. In their first three games of the season the Lady Gamecocks are off to a 1-1-1 record. A year of experience and a more comparable schedule should assist the Lady Gamecocks in improving their record and increasing their

Lady Gamecocks drop to 5-4 in Furman tournament

by Rebecca Matanic
Chanticleer Sports editor

After a 3-0 rout of Georgia Southern to open their home season Sept. 4, the Lady Gamecock volleyball team improved their record to 4-1. However, a rough weekend at the Furman Invitational dropped JSU to 5-4 on the season.

The Lady Gamecocks dropped the opening match of the invitational to the College of Charleston losing 3-15, 8-15, 15-8 and 12-15. Angela Woodard led the JSU offensive attack with 14 kills. Amy Reaves contributed 13 kills while Amanda Sandlin added 12. On defense Reaves contributed 15 digs and Robyn Carpenter 10.

Against undefeated Georgia Tech the Lady Gamecocks were defeated in three games 8-15, 7-15, 13-15. Junior outside hitter Kim Carney led JSU with 11 kills and added seven digs. Amanda Sandlin led the defense with eight digs.

The Lady Gamecocks rebounded from the consecutive defeats by beating the University of North Carolina-Asheville 4-15, 16-14, 15-9 and 15-12. Kim Carney once again led the offensive charge with 17 kills. Amy Reaves and Amanda Sandlin spiked their way to 10 kills a piece.

competitiveness in the Trans America Athletic Conference.

"It will definitely be another difficult year," said Howe. "I do, however, believe the team will come away with more wins. Now that the girls have a year under their belts, they know what to expect and how to better react in tough situations," she said.

Although the Lady Gamecocks are only entering their second season, they are counting on experience and depth returning at every position to improve on their initial campaign.

Howe is looking to three sophomores to lead the Lady Gamecock attack in 1996. Helen Campbell, a 5-7 midfielder from Melbourne Beach, Fla., 5-7 defender Adrian Dreher from Clinton, Miss., and 5-6 midfielder Heather Bean from Vicksburg, Miss. are three key players Howe is relying on for team leadership.

"Helen is the most athletic player on the team," Howe said of Campbell. "She gives us speed up front and has a good attitude. I'm looking for her to score goals this year."

Defensively Howe said that Dreher, "... is a good tackler with lots of speed." Midfielder Bean, coming off knee surgery is also expected to assist the Lady Gamecock attack.

"She is a solid center midfielder with good vision. She is a good decisionmaker with the ball," Howe said.

Although there are reasons for increasing optimism in the women's soccer program, this season's schedule provides plenty of challenging opponents. Howe considers the Auburn Tigers probably the toughest opponent the Lady Gamecocks will face. Louisiana State University, Florida State University and TAAC divisional foe Mercer are also ranked highly by Howe.

The women's soccer team play hosts to the JSU Adidas Invitational Saturday and Sunday. The invitational includes host JSU, Alabama-Huntsville, Tusculum and Huntington.

Defensively, Sandlin led JSU with 12 digs. Melanie Linder contributed nine digs and Robyn Carpenter added eight.

The Lady Gamecocks finished the invitational with a 1-3 loss to host Furman. Furman improved their record to 7-1 by defeating JSU 15-10, 11-15, 8-15, 11-15. Amy Reaves led JSU with 14 kills. Kim Carney contributed 12 while Melanie Linder added 10. Defensively, Amanda Sandlin had 14 digs.

The Lady Gamecocks next home game is at 6 p.m. Sept. 24 against the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga.

touchdown pass. At half-time the game was deadlocked at 10.

In the second half, however, JSU turnovers and penalties consistently provided the Braves with excellent field position. West Georgia took the lead after a punt and personal foul against the Gamecocks gave them the ball at the JSU 26 yard line. Fullback Kevin Carroll's four yard touchdown run and the extra point conversion put the Braves ahead for good 17-10.

JSU's offense couldn't get going. Incomplete passes and penalties resulted in punts and more scoring opportunities for West Georgia.

"We just didn't play good football. We had too many mistakes," Kirby said.

Not only did the Gamecocks make too many mistakes, the Braves consistently capitalized on them. Late in the third quarter Strange once again took to the air and hit Ron Dixon with a nine yard touchdown pass increasing the Braves advantage to 24-10.

The Braves put the game out of reach in the fourth quarter. They took advantage of another Gamecock turnover with Jeremy Coates 28 yard field goal midway through the fourth quarter. Another Coates field goal late in the fourth made the final score 30-10.

"We played well in spots, but the bottom line is they deserved to win the football game," Burgess said.

"It is a big loss, but it woke us up," Kirby added.

The Gamecocks will need to be wide awake for Saturday's 7 p.m. game in Thibodeaux, La. against Gulf South Conference foe Nicholls State. The Gamecocks lead the all-time series against Nicholls State. Both teams enter the contest with 0-1 records.
